LINCOLN'S

WATER PROOF BLACKING,

AND LEATHER PRESERVATIVE.

Keep your Feet dry and you will seldom need a Physician.

IS it not a truth that when the feet are often wet, it is one of the greatest causes of colds and consumption? It is a truth that when leather is often wet and dried, it soon becomes hard, stiff, and cracks; but when its water-proof this is remedied. By the application of this preservative, it remains soft, and entirely impervious to water.

After being engaged for 25 years in the manufacture of Leather in all its branches, and being often troubled with wet feet myself, I was led to experimenting on different compositions, and found it easy to make it water-proof, but at the same time extremely injurious to the leather. At last by a chemical process, I discovered a preparation which perfectly harmonizes with the astringent property of with which leather is tanned. It will not only make leather water-proof, but it likewise softens the leather, and it will Positively wear twice as long.

I have now used it for three years, and a large part of that time have worked in a wet tannery, with my boots constantly in water, and have not had my feet wet during that time. I can therefore in all confidence, recommend it to the public as the best article in the market.

KATIE'S NEW YEAR GIFT.

A SKETCH FOR THE SEASON.

BY MRS. MARY A. DENNISON.

From the Boston Olive Branch.

'Run to the door, Katie; run quick. It's something for you, I know.'

'A bouquet, Miss, and oh! so beautiful!' said the girl, tripping back to the parlor.

'How rare—what perfume! Katie, don't you wish you could have such nice things sent you? There, place it carefully in the vase—that night I will wear some of them in my hair. That will do; I will ring for you when I want you.'

'Such great loving blue eyes, and such a noble forehead,' mused little Kate as she flew about the kitchen, intent, upon her morning work. 'Such soft eyes, and such a serious handsome face—oh! I do very dearly love Miss Julia; I must love him. If I only—but what nonsense,' and she burst into a light, clear laugh. 'Little Katies that live in kitchens mustn't expect lawyers or rich men for husbands.'

Katie stood that evening behind Miss Julia's chair, her little red hands half buried in the rich dark curls that she only had the requisite taste to adjust. The disarranged implements of the toilet lay scattered in profusion upon the marble table, and the mirror, framed exquisitely in bronze and gilt, reflected the beautiful face of the heiress, in all its various modes of expression.

'I declare, Katie,' she suddenly exclaimed, 'you are almost handsome. I have a mind some time to dress you up and see what kind of a lady you would make. How old are you?'

'Fifteen,' answered the child voice, while a deep blush mantled the round cheeks.

'Fifteen,' mused the heiress; 'a promise of something more in the face—figure slight and graceful—oh! the hands and decided y too large and coarse! See! who that is, quick Katie. You cannot have come yet!'

'A note, Miss Julia.'

The beauty read it eagerly, then threw it with an angry toss upon the table. 'Provoking!' she muttered; 'Frank has been taken ill with a violent headache. Just now of all times! My dream hurried for nothing,'—a satin robe, richly embroidered, laid in a recess,—'and this is the first ball of the season.'

'There, Katie, put the ear drops down, and just undo my hair. Is it not ridiculous, mother, just for a slight headache to disappoint me so?' she exclaimed, her cheeks reddened with two intense spots; 'I am downright angry.—If he had only proposed, I declare I'd go.'

'But if he is sick, daughter?'

'Sick! nonsense—he has a scheme, and I do believe he is trying me in some manner. Any other than Frank's child rule it; but I have too much respect for his fortune to offend him now. Well, I suppose I must stay at home—but the idea is so very ridiculous! disappointing me either for pleasure or some other motion. I am angry with him.'

Katie unbraided and uncurled with trembling fingers. He was a stranger in life, this arrogant beading to circumstances.

It was a new lesson in life, this fashionable affection of the heart; this love for the purse, not the person; she could not understand it. For a long while she sat musing upon it before the fire, in the pleasant tidy kitchen.

Katie was an orphan. She had wept bitter tears above the dying form of both father and mother; nay! she had held both dying heads upon her bosom, and closed their eyes with her own hands.

She was a girl of rare natural talents as yet undeveloped. Her brain was that of a woman; her manners partook of the innocent simplicity of childhood. She had been nurtured in poverty, yet by noble parents, who had taught her the meaning of the word duty. So only unassuming, humble, yet with a natural pride that would submit to nothing dishonorable, Katie was almost a companion while she was a servant. Had her lot fallen where she could have been rightly appreciated, she would have been taken to the heart as a daughter by the right of nobility of character and gentleness of nature.

'So she will not come,' and he calls for her so often, oh, it is cruel,' and the speaker moved hastily through the room, whose splendor was darkened by a twilight sombreness. 'Dear lady will you let me stay with him?'

'You—child!'

'I know I am young, but I am not afraid, and if he does not rave, he may think—'

'It is her, as I may—so he might; he is delirious much of the time; the room is dark, too; but my good child remember it is a contagious fever, and only in which the physician gives very, very little hope,' she cried, clasping her hands in anguish. 'I am myself an invalid; we cannot get a nurse for at least a week—and to take you, so young and healthful, to tie you down to a sick room—'

'Oh, say nothing, please madam,' exclaimed Katie, 'do let me stay. I know I am only a child, but I have seen sorrowing and suffering before now—my father, my mother—both died in my arms,' and faltered, and overcome by some sudden recollections, she sank weeping upon her seat.

The lady arose, and with trembling fingers herself untied the poor maiden's bonnet, and smoothing back the fair hair, said 'bless you, my child, you may stay, and if my love will repay your devotion, you are already recompensed.'

'Where did you say Katie had gone, mother,' said Julia, languidly lifting up her head from the lounge.

'Over to your neighbor's to inquire after Frank.'

'O, mother, you will not let her come near the house again, exclaimed the beauty, springing with energy from her seat; 'that dreadful fever!' 'Papa says there are six lying dead with it down town.'

'I told her if she went she must stay; but she seemed possessed to go, and even hinted at taking care of him! you know they cannot get a nurse.'

'Can't they? poor fellow. I pity Frank, he thinks so much of me; isn't it well we are not engaged, mother—it would have been so awkward in case of his death.' 'He has sent for me, you say.' 'He certainly, if he loves me, does not wish to expose me so frightfully; perhaps it is only in his delirium he calls for me. I hope he will get well, poor fellow! I am sure I should miss him if he were to die.—But it is so strange about Katie! What in the world did she want to go there for?' and sinking back gracefully upon the soft cushions, she placed one delicate hand beneath her temple, and as unconcernedly as if there were no sorrow in the world, continued the thrilling novel upon whose pages were marks of tears shed over imaginary woes.

Far different with Katie. Oh, how tireless she was—a ministering spirit to the sick room. Her hands, decidedly too large and sunburnt, though Miss Julia had complimentarily turned them, moved softly over the feverish forehead of the sick man. Ever at his side was she, with no thought in her loving heart, but how she might ease his suffering. And upon the faint light of his room shone upon his closed eyelids, over that pale high brow and wasted form, she would kneel at his bedside and implore heaven that he might be saved.

Hour by hour when the fever was high, she bent over him; delighted as a child when he called her Julia. No jealousy, affection, no jealousy disturbed her genuine heart; she was doing a good deed for pure love and goodness—not once did this humble, beautiful girl think of herself as an equal of either Julia or the lawyer.

Day after day, though the strength grew less, did she continue devotedly by the sick couch, alternately with the feeble mother, discharging her arduous duties. Two days came—passed.

'He is saved,' said the doctor, 'but only by the most unremitting care, under God,' he continued casting a look of admiration at poor Katie, who overcome both with watching and joy, weeping like an infant fell into the arms of the grateful mother.

'How delicious this tastes,' murmured Frank in a very feeble tone; 'but mother,' he continued, pushing slightly away the plate and orange, 'I may surely see Julia now.'

'She is not here, my son,' said the lady softly.

'But somebody is here,' and with a nervous movement he parted the curtains, before Katie could escape.

'Why, Katie, as I live! Come here, child—you are looking pale, Katie,' he said, tenderly taking her hand, quite pale, little Katie, your roses are all gone; have you been sick, too? Sit down here and tell me—tell me all about Julia; she will well! How kind she was to nurse me during my sickness.'

Katie's cheeks were as crimson now as they were white before. Her lips quivered too, and she cast a timid look toward his mother. In her bright eyes tears were gathering, and they did not escape the young man's observation.

'For heaven's sake tell me,' he exclaimed, 'is Julia sick? did she take the fever?'

'Neither sick, nor has she been,' said his mother gravely. 'It is best to tell you at once, that while you were ill she sometimes formally inquired for you—attended two balls, and never came near the house.'

'Mother, you would not deceive me; surely I saw her here—surely she was here by my side—her hand in mine.'

'No, Frank, I repeat it; she has not called—scarcely sent here since your first attack. Katie has been your good angel for five long weeks.'

He glanced once at the sweet girl, his eyes filled with tears, but his heart was grieved. He drew the curtain stitchly, and turned his face to the wall.

After that day he said little about Julia.

New Year's morning came. Frank, pale and sp

State Reform School.

From the Annual Reports of the Trustees and Superintendent, we learn that this beneficial institution has during the past year been very successful in its operations. The reformatory objects for which it was established have been apparently forwarded in a large degree, with respect to the youthful offenders who have become its inmates. Much has been done to create in them habits of sobriety, order and usefulness; and being treated with gentleness and kindness by the excellent Superintendent, Mr. Lincoln, they have very generally shown their gratitude by a prompt and willing obedience to the regulations of the School, and by a gratifying attention to their labors and studies.

The Trustees say that the School is doing its work well, and that its claims are strong upon the community, for its confidence and support.

The benefits of the institution appear to have accrued to nearly every part of the State during the past year—and more generally to the small towns than heretofore. The new commitments were as follows—from Portland 19, Bangor 5, Gardiner 3, Augusta 1, Bath 2, Rockland 4, Calais 4, Biddeford 4,—by the Supreme Court 6, by Justices of the Peace (towns not named) 48. Total 94. Less than half of the new commitments have been from the "cities" of the State.

Of all the admissions up to the date of the Report, 13 have been from Androscoggin county, 102 from Cumberland, 7 from Franklin, 3 from Hancock, 65 from Kennebec, 27 from Lincoln, 5 from Oxford, 88 from Penobscot, 1 from Piscataquis, 21 from Sagadahoc, 16 from Somerset, 15 from Waldo, 24 from Washington, 63 from York. Total 439.

At first the commitments were mostly from the cities and large towns—but he adds—lessons from the smaller towns are now becoming more frequent, as the beneficial and reformatory influences of the discipline become more manifest. The 439 admissions above named, since the institution was opened, were from 103 towns; and the 94 pupils admitted in 1857 were from 50 different places.

The whole number remaining in the school on the 30th Nov. last, was 247. Discharged or apprenticed during the year 77. Admitted 94.

The cost of supporting the School for the year ending March 31, 1857 (after deducting permanent improvements and increase in value of stock) was $20,677. The amount received from the avails of the boys' labor was $2,571. This does not include the value of their labor upon the farm,—but only the returns of their mechanical labor, we presume. It seems that 40 boys were employed until the 1st of November, in making children's shoes for Messrs. J. Brown & Son of Marblehead—but that demand has now closed. Fifty boys have also been employed in seating chairs for Walter Corey of Portland. The work in that department is now slack. Within the past year they have commenced the making of brick—300,000 of which have been made—half the quantity being now on hand, for sale. Twenty boys were employed in that business during the summer.

46 have been employed in the Tailors' Shop, having made 6,200 different articles, and repaired 32,651 articles.

On the farm about 40 are employed on the average,—and the farm productions are valued at $3,066.

The cost of supporting an inmate of the School averages $93—while it costs $113 for each inmate of the State Prison. The most of the boys who have been sent to the Reform School, would eventually have brought up in the State Prison—but the larger part will now undoubtedly be saved to the community, as good and valuable citizens. In an economical as well as well as a benevolent light the institution is therefore likely to pay well in the long run.

The Superintendent gives a table of statistics relative to the moral condition of the boys when received, and the home influences under which they had lived. These facts are interesting and instructive, but we have not space to publish them in our brief notice of the school. Of the whole number received, (439) 198 have parents one or both of whom are or have been intemperate; 333 were idle or had no steady employment; 317 had been habitual truants from school, (and this is reported, as one of the most prolific causes of their bad behavior;) 305 have been Sabbath-breakers; 301 profane.

Of the 439 committed, 275 were born in the United States (322 of American parents) and 83 are of foreign birth.

233 of them were committed for larceny.

Of the 194 discharged before 1857, 90 have been apprenticed to different trades.

The annual expenditure for the support of the School has thus far been large; but the institution is yet in its infancy. When the farm is fairly brought up to its proper productiveness, and as the mechanical operations become more profitable, the net cost will be materially lessened.

The Texan Filibusters are preparing to mix into the revolutionary movements in Mexico. They think the opportunity promises well for getting out another State or two.

KANSAS MATTERS.—We learn that both the Territorial and State Legislatures have organized and received messages—the one from Acting-Governor Denver, the other from Gov. Robinson.

This State Legislature is the one elected by the people under the Topeka Constitution.

The latest dispatches up to Saturday rendered it not improbable that the pro-slavery party had, at the election of the 4th January, (held under the Lecompton Convention arrangement,) chosen not only the State officers but also a majority of the Legislature,—the free State men not having generally voted, because they would not thus seem to endorse or countenance the Lecompton swindle, and because the oath to support that Constitution was to be demanded of all challanged voters. If the pro-slavery men have thus carried the Legislature, the free State men will of course have no opportunity to change or annul the Constitution, even if it could be done under its own provisions. But it could not not be, without violating the plain letter of the instrument—and if attempted by a Free State Legislature elected under it, would be at once denounced as a revolutionary proceeding, by the very men here at the North who are now saying that the free State men could by accepting the Constitution immediately amend it to the satisfaction of the people and thus settle the whole question. As it now stands the people will not accept the Lecompton instrument. They have just voted against it and the administration will seek to force it upon them at its peril.

Upon this point the Tribune of Friday says:

Our special dispatch from Washington this morning states that the Administration party in Congress have not at all relaxed their purpose to force the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton Constitution. They are doubtless somewhat encouraged by the difference between the actual proceedings and spirit of the Indiana State Convention and the report which first reached us from Indianapolis. It seems that, instead of being controlled by the Douglas wing of the party, it was Mr. Bright who packed and managed the Convention, among whose members, it is said, there were no less than sixty postmasters. Which of the whole power of the administration will suffice to carry the Lecompton fraud through Congress may be a question; but we think it will. That, however, will not be the end of the matter by a great deal.

The report received at San Francisco on the 4th of December, by way of Oregon, that the Mormons had attacked one of Col. Johnson's detachments and killed 180 men, caused a tremendous excitement in California, and a general desire to raise an expedition for Utah to wipe out the "Saints." The falsity of the report was soon known of course.

The California papers are hoping that the Government will make that State the base of its operations in the war against the Mormons. The vast expenditure anticipated would then go in large proportion into the pockets of Californians.

They have a Spanish paper at Los Angelos, California, called "El Clamor Publico." We have the number for "Noviembre 28," which certainly makes a great noise about something. It appears to be in trouble about "Los Estados Unidos" and "del Mormonismo"—also in regard to some doings in Kansas by "del verdaderos Yankees de la Nueva Inglaterra."

In the case of Billing's Senatorial vacancy in Washington county in 1841, referred to by us in an article of Saturday, the number of votes received by the candidate who was passed by, (Mr. Christopher C. Bradbury) was 34, as stated by the Ken. Journal. We had the impression that he received the full Whig vote of the District. The error does not affect the point in the case, however. The Democrats in the Legislature passed by Mr. Bradbury, and elected one Joel Scott, who received but fourteen votes—and this action was approved by the Augusta Age.

The issue for January, of this beautiful edition, comprises "The Abbot" in two volumes. This novel is a Sequel to "The Monastery," and in connection with that work gives an excellent illustration of Historical incidents, and the manners and customs during the eventful period of the early part of Queen Elizabeth's reign and that of Mary of Scotland.—The illustrations of these volumes are in the same exquisite style of art which has characterized the engravings in the previous issues. Messrs Bugbee & Co., are the Bangor agents.

FIFTY YEARS IN CHAINS; OR, THE LIFE OF AN AMERICAN SLAVE. New York: H. Dayton. 1858.

This interesting story, which occupies a handsome volume of 430 pages is represented as true in every particular, and the subject of it is still a slave by the laws of the country.—The National Era says it is "one of the most intensely interesting autobiographies of the day." It is the history of a slave in the far South, who, after two or three escapes and recaptures, finally, an old man, found freedom and rest in one of the Northern States. The story is told with great simplicity, but with much power and pathos. The merit of the work is in its narration of personal experience. The writer does not stop to rave about Slavery, and rarely to exclaim against its gigantic system of wrong, but contents himself with narrating his own experience while a slave, and the reader can make his own deductions. As a piece of self history, this work has high merit, and as a history of American Slavery, higher still.

SHIPBUILDING ON THE PENOBSCOT.—The times are so much out of joint that master builders are not inclined to risk much in building at present. Workmen whom they have heretofore employed have, therefore, in some instances, felt compelled to turn master workmen themselves. Two associations have been formed at this port for this purpose.—Eight journeymen are building a vessel in Brewer, previously noticed, and about 25 are engaged on a vessel of from 250 to 275 tons, the keel of which has just been laid in the yard of Mr. Tewksbury in this city. Mr. Tewksbury is the master workman.

We learn that preparations are in progress for building two vessels in Searsport the coming season, but by what parties we have not ascertained.

The Murder Trial at Portland.

The trial of Araham Cox and Peter Williams, for murder on the high seas, commenced last week in Portland, before the United States Court. From the opening argument of District Attorney Shepley, we take the following statement of the case:

It will be in evidence before you, that on the 27th July last, the brig Albion Cooper, an American vessel, left the port of Portland for the port of Cardenas, in the Island of Cuba.—She had on board the following persons:—Daniel R. Humphrey, master; Collingwood P. Smith, mate; Quentin D. Smith, 2d mate the person for whose murder these defendants are upon trial; Thomas Fahey, who shipped under the name of Ezekiel Vinton; Davis, who shipped under the name of Charles King; Peter Williams, who shipped as William Harvey, and Abraham Cox, the negro cook, under his own name.

Of all these, the prisoners at the bar are the only persons who have ever returned. Of the vessel on which they embarked, all that has ever been seen since they deserted it, were a few charred and blackened embers, floating about the waves.

On the second day of September, the Black Squall, commanded by Capt. Charles Bryant, which had left Philadelphia for Havana, picked up a boat on the Bahama Banks. The boat, which has since been brought home to this port, was the boat of the Albion Cooper. In this boat were three men; two of them were the prisoners at the bar, the other man, whom almost remarkable dispensation of Providence has removed by death.

[The Attorney went on to state that the Irishman, Fahey, gave information of the murders to Capt. Bryant, and that, subsequently, Cox and Williams made confessions of the murders, but implicated Fahey to a greater extent than he himself admitted. Fahey died before arriving at Portland—and the other prisoners have since retracted their plea of guilty. The confessions which were made by Cox and Williams, are stated as follows:]

Williams gave a long account of a controversy he had had with Capt. Smith, at a time long anterior to the time of the murder. He gave the account of the punishment inflicted upon him, of a controversy with the 1st mate, resulting with Williams stabbing the 1st mate in the breast with his sheath knife, that he was taken up and put in irons and severely punished for the attempt to kill the first mate, that five days before the murder was committed the irons were taken off. He then stated that Cox, the negro cook, and the Irishman, Fahey, were conversing together and determined upon murdering the captain, mate and all hands, except themselves, that the arrangement was first entered into between him and Cox, that the knowledge was communicated to the Irishman, that they awaited a convenient opportunity to commit the crime, that on the night of the 28th of August, Fahey, the Irishman, and Williams had the middle watch in deck, from 12 to 4 o'clock, that Fahey had the watch at on the quarter deck from 12 to 2 o'clock, and that then there was to be an exchange, and Williams, the prisoner, was to go aft, and Fahey, the Irishman, was to have the forward watch, that at this watch the vessel was at anchor near the Stirrup Keys. The captain was lying asleep upon the quarter deck upon his mattress, with an umbrella upon his face. Quentin D. Smith was lying asleep in the belly of the mainsail. Collingwood P. Smith, the 1st mate, in a high fever, in consequence of the wounds he had received some days before, constantly calling for water. Davis, the seaman, was asleep in his bunk, in the forecastle.

At 2 o'clock, Williams left the forward part of the vessel to proceed to the quarter deck.—In going along to the quarter deck he passed the cabin of Cox, who had a window open from his bunk. The black and Williams had some conversation, and then it was that the cook took two razors which he had previously prepared, some days before, by putting some little sticks along by the sides of the handle so as to make a firm hold, which two razors were owned by the negro man Cox, and by him carried out. Each one of them took a razor. Williams took what he calls in his broken English, for he is a Belgian, a little axe, and proceeded to execute their horrid work. They were together. Williams passed along towards that side of the quarter deck where the captain was lying on his mattress, and Cox, the negro man, proceeded towards the mainsail, in which Smith was lying asleep.

With the hatchet Williams despatched the captain at a single blow, and it does not appear that there was the slightest motion made by him at or after the time. Smith was lying then in the mainsail, and the cook going to him armed with a razor, he, according to the account of Williams, made some cuts at him with the razor, but did not instantly kill him. According to his own account, he went there, and in doing something to the mainsail, awakened him. He does not admit that he inflicted any wounds upon him, but rather making preparatory motions towards doing so.

While he was doing this, Quentin D. Smith spoke to him and asked him what he was doing. He said he came aft to trim the lamp.—At that time, Williams having finished his work with the master, came towards Cox and Smith, and asked Cox, with an oath, what he was doing there. Cox said the man was awake, and Smith then cried murder, springing from the sail, was pursued by one or both of these men, and was dispatched as he passed round to the other side of the quarter, by a blow upon the head with the hammer given by Williams. But before he was finally killed, and after he made the cry of murder, there had been a slight interruption,—slight to these—for the 1st mate hearing the noise, had come to the hatch way, and was knocked back by a blow from the hatchet. (At this point a lady in the Court uttered a shriek.) Leaving him in this condition to complete his work of death upon the second mate, they then passed out; the cook took from his galley an axe; they then passed forward to where the Irishman was upon the forecastle. They compelled him to hold the light at the hatchway, which opened down into the forecastle. They went down into the forecastle and found Davis lying asleep in his bunk, with his head hanging out over. With the axe Cox struck him two blows on his shoulders. He sprang from his berth and followed them up the steps, tried to the deck. They knocked him back covered with blood, exclaiming and calling them by name. They then made preparation for leaving the vessel, examined the vessel's papers; rifled the bodies of the murdered men and their chests and clothing. They occupied themselves in this way till 8 o'clock in the morning, when they went down and put Davis out of his agony, and finished him with successive blows of the axe.

Their murdered bodies were suffered to lie for two long days. They twice got the vessel under weigh and endeavored to make sail.—They committed to the deep the bodies of the murdered men; they sent the Irishman with combustible matter into the hold to set fire to the vessel, and issuing many things which they finally threw overboard, they left the brig.

You will hear the testimony from the witnesses. How during those two days when on board the vessel, the horrors of a guilty conscience exercised these men—hear the account of the murderer Williams, how he saw, both before and after the murder, by his bedside and in the rigging—saw the captain—how he thought he saw him coming to the boat. The image of his murdered master, the first man he had killed, constantly haunted his dreams.

THE STATE TEMPERANCE CONVENTION, which assembled at Augusta last week, was organized with the following officers:

President—Hon. LOT M. MORRILL.

Vice Presidents—Leonard Andrews, Esq., York; Hon. Warren H. Vinton, Cumberland; Hon. Enoch W. Woodbury, Union; Uriah Foss, Esq., Androscoggin; Wm. R. Smith, Esq., Kennebec; Samuel Lambert, Esq., Franklin; Hon. Hiram Chapman, Lincoln; Hon. Wm. Reed, Sagadahoc; Hon. Nathan G. Hichborn, Waldo; Samuel Clement, Esq., Somerset; Hon. Aaron A. The Convention was addressed by Hon. Anson P. Morrill, Rev. Mr. Allen of Farmington, Rev. Mr. Colby of Augusta, Rev. Mr. Dillingham of Augusta, Rev. Mr. Eaton of Readfield, and Hon. W. H. Vinton of Gray.

The following resolutions, reported by a business committee, were passed.

Resolved, That the license system for the suppression of the liquor traffic has been weighed in the balance and found wanting.

Resolved, That prohibition is the true and only basis of legislation for the suppression of intemperance; and the people of Maine demand an immediate return to that great principle.

Resolved, That in the cause in which we are engaged we recognize no religious sect or political party as such but cheerfully welcome to our ranks every one who will accept, in principle and practice, the great moral doctrine which lies at the foundation of our enterprise, viz, Legal Prohibition of the traffic in intoxicating liquors as a drink.

Resolved, That we repudiate the aspersion which has been cast upon us that in giving so much prominence to prohibition we have abandoned moral suasion; on the contrary, we believe that prohibition is the highest and truest development of moral suasion.

Resolved, That since it is understood to be the policy of the Legislature to submit to the people a law to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors, it is especially important, and we think imperatively demanded by the friends of Temperance throughout the state, that the law be submitted at the earliest possible day.

Addresses were made by Hon. Neal Dow of Portland and by Hon. Anson P. Morrill.

Hon. Sidney Perham, Agent of the State Central Temperance Committee, read a report of his labors for the last year.

Rev. Mr. Thompson, who has been employed by the Committee for about two months in the Western part of the State, made a statement of his labors.

LEGISLATURE OF MAINE.

THURSDAY, Jan. 14.

Senate proceedings generally not important.

On motion of Mr. Stinchfield,

Ordered, That so much of the Governor's Address as relates to the settlement of public lands, be referred to the Committee on State Lands and State Roads.

HOUSE.—Mr. Mayo, of Orono, moved the following order:

LATER FROM EUROPE.

ARRIVAL OF THE

AMERICA,

AT HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, Jan. 16.

The America, Capt. Lott, from Liverpool, 10th, morning of 2d, arrived at Halifax 10 A. M.

Among the passengers are Madame Lola Montez, Countess of Landsfeldt, (who was married to Prince of Shulkaskky, of Paris,) and whole suit, Col. Charles Burgthal of Philadelphia, bearer of despatches for the U. S. government, from Paris, and Mr. Galibone [Allibone?] and family, of Philadelphia.

The America reports, 6th, 7.43 P. M. passed steamship Europa.

Britain.

British revenue returns show a decrease in receipts for last quarter, of about £800,000, and on the year, about £1,500,000. The decrease principally arises from reduced taxation.

The official programme of the ceremonies to be observed on the marriage of the Princess Royal appears in the court circular. The wedding is definitely fixed for Jan. 25th.

Financial Affairs.

In London, on the 30th, there was a slightly increased demand for money to meet the requirements at the end of the year. On Tuesday, some disappointment was felt that a further reduction in the rate of discount was not made by the Bank of England, but it was supposed the measure was postponed until after payment of January dividends. There was only a slight demand for money at the bank. There were no new failures—and the year closed more favorably than was anticipated.

Latest by Telegraph to Liverpool.

London, Saturday. [Times city article.]—The year has commenced favorably in all stock markets, and consols have experienced a further improvement of nearly one-half per cent, the last price to-day being exactly the same as that on 1st of January, 1858. At the bank, notwithstanding the approach of the 4th, the demand for discount is very light. In open market, the rate for best bills ranges between 6¾ and 7 per cent.

At Hamburg the rate of discount has declined to 4½ per cent.

The £400,000 from Australia by the "Suffolk" has arrived in London, and is expected to be sold to the Bank.

A further sum of £105,000 from Australia has arrived at Suez.

Operations against Canton.

[From the Times.] By the present time probably Canton has been attacked and captured. It has been determined to make the dispute entirely local. Should the Emperor answer the capture of Canton by the expulsion of English traders from Shanghae, then indeed matters will grow serious.

The British force seems to be sufficient for the purpose of retribution at Canton. In a few days, says our correspondent, we may reasonably expect to have 700 guns and 7000 men in these waters. Of the latter we shall probably be able to land 4000.

We learn that the French have also determined to resort to hostilities against the Chinese. Baron Gros has with him a naval force from which he can land 600 seamen; he has therefore resolved to join operations against Canton. Thus we shall have the singular spectacle of two nations simultaneously prosecuting hostilities against the same people, on different grounds, and without any formal convention of alliance,—in fact the two expeditions may be looked upon as entirely separate.

It is well understood that the Americans are to retain their position of looking on.

The Leviathan.

The process of working down towards the water will be formally commenced for the 6th time either to-day or Monday. No less than 11 presses are fixed against the aft cradle, and 10 against the forward one. One of the former is of enormous strength and dimensions.

France.

The Paris Constitutional boldly defends the system which the French government has adopted of purchasing negroes on the coast of Africa and carrying them to compulsory service in the French Antilles. It argues that in no other manner can prosperity be restored to them, and ridicules the opposition of English philanthropists. A dispatch from Paris, however, says that the Emperor will not renew the contract for supplying French colonies with negroes.

On the 31st the Plenipotentiaries proceeded to the ratification of the treaty relating to the new frontier of Bessarabia.

The Earthquake at Naples.

Letters from Naples give graphic details of the late earthquake. Official accounts leave no doubt that several thousand perished, and some estimates go as high as 15,000 to 20,000.

Sardinia.

Spain.

Letters from Spain say, it appears certain that the Spanish Government will consider the mediation of England and France in Mexican affairs as broken off, if Mexico does not accept all its conditions. In consequence of this resolution, preparations are being actively made, both in Spanish ports and in Cuba, for the expedition against Mexico.

Prussia.

A Berlin letter says that the American crisis caused such a serious effect on the commerce of Thuringen, that the government of Weimar has thought necessary to convoke an extraordinary session of the diet, to regulate commercial affairs. Apolda, which is the principal manufacturing town of the Grand Duchy, contains a great number of stocking weaving establishments, the productions of which are exported to the United States via Hamburg.

Austria.

The Emperor has authorized the chambers of commerce and trade, of Trieste, to form a joint stock bank with a capital of $1,000,000 sterling.

Turkey.

It is said that the Porte, before consenting to cutting of the Suez canal, demands the evacuation of Persia.

India.

Accounts of relief of Lucknow are meagre.

Loss of Rebels between 13th and 17th is estimated in one account at seven thousand.

China.

According to advices in French papers, negotiations entered into by English Representation with the Chinese government have failed.

Persecutions of the Chinese against christians were increasing—several of the latter having fallen victims.

The United States frigate Minnesota, reached Hong Kong 5th of November.

Mr Reed landed on 7th, under salute from fort and guard of honor.

At Shanghai, prices of teas were without material change, although holders were demanding higher rates. Exchange 6 a 7 to 6 a 9.

The United States steamers Minnesota and San Jacinto, and the sloops Levant and Portsmouth, were at Hong Kong on the 16th Nov.

SECOND DESPATCH.

From Washington.

[Cor. Herald, 16th.] The Sec'y of Treasury has issued a circular to collectors, &c. calling attention to the following: "Should treasury notes bearing interest be sent to disbursing officers, for payment of public creditors, they will be directed to date their endorsements—that date so endorsed to be legally regarded as the, through date of the issue of such notes from which interest is to be computed."

Capt Ramsay has been restored to the retired list by the Naval Court, with a salary of $2500.

The Naval Court of Enquiry will be continued in session till the cases before it are disposed of, although the law expires to-day.

The Navy Department has advices of the arrival of the U. S. frigate Merrimac at Rio Janeiro, in 83 days from Boston, and all well on board. She would leave as soon as she could be prepared for the passage around Cape Horn.

Mr. Angel was confirmed yesterday as Minister to Norway and Sweden.

A large number of Consular appointments were made to-day. They will not be made public till next week.

Mr. Clingman, from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, in the House, will report in favor of sustaining the views of the President on filibustering.

Mr. Mason, from the Senate Committee, will do the same thing.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.

The Senate have confirmed the following appointments:—John Appleton, of Maine, Assistant Secretary of State; Richard K. Meade, of Virginia, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Brazil; Wm. B. Reed, of Pennsylvania, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to China; John Bigler, of California, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to Chili; Henry C. Murphy, of New York, Minister resident to the Netherlands; Benjamin F. Angel, of New York, Minister resident to Sweden; James Williams, of Tennessee, Minister resident of Constantinople; Wm. R. Calhoun, of South Carolina, Secretary of Legation at Paris.

The Southern mail from all points, as late as Cuba, have been received but the newspapers contain nothing of importance.

The Robertson Trial.

ROCHESTER, 16th.

The Robertson case was called on this forenoon. Defendant's mother testified that her money had existed between him and his wife during the past two years. The surgeon who attended Mrs Robertson testified to the uniform kind attentions of defendant to his wife, and described the effects of various medicines which the prosecution claims were procured of Biegler by the defendant, to poison his wife, some of which he said were simple and harmless.

One witness testified that young Biegler had said that Mr. Robertson had pressed him for the money due from his father, but that he had the cord so tight around Robertson's neck that the money would come from the other way. Also, that Biegler had said that if he could have his own way, that he would be the only witness against the defendant.

Mr. Dankjee, the cashier of the Zimmerman Bank, was sworn—He said that the defendant was negotiating to raise money from the said bank, and that the 90, 80 and 70 days' which appeared in the evidence of the prosecution, doubtless referred to the time in which the defendant must raise the money.

In the afternoon session, the conversation of young Biegler, about having cords around the defendant's neck, was corroborated by two witnesses. By another witness, it was proved that the defendant was out of the city at one time, when Biegler swears he was at his office for medicines to poison his wife.

Hurricane at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, 16th.

A sudden storm of wind came up this afternoon with rain—amounting to nearly a hurricane. Fifteen ships broke from their moorings, and were considerably damaged. The C. S. Pennell of Bath, and the Ellen Stewart badly injured. Several houses were unroofed. The Lake end of the Ponchartrain R. R. is about half destroyed. The damage to steamboats which broke loose is immense. Chimneys were blown down, and several lives were lost.

It is not known whether it extended to the Gulf, but fears are felt as to that region, and that the damage is much greater than yet reported.

CLINTON, Ill. 17th.

A destructive fire occurred here this morning—supposed incendiary. Loss about $50,000 or $60,000.

NEW YORK, 17th.

The steamer Sarah Sands, reported as burnt, was only partially destroyed. She is an iron steamer, and the fire, by the energy and coolness of her officers and men, was confined to one of her compartments, which was entirely burned out, leaving but the iron shell. She had 300 soldiers on board, for India, and a number of women and children. The latter were put into a life-boat, which laid to, near the ship, till the fire was extinguished. A heavy gale was blowing, but the ship made her way to the island of Mauritius, 400 miles distant.

WASHINGTON MATTERS.—The correspondent of the New York Times says,—"It is found that the Minnesota Constitution sent to Congress is not the one signed by the entire Convention and ratified by the people, but the one adopted in the minority Democratic segment of the Convention, while it was divided, and before the two segments united.

This palpable and astounding fraud evidently has two objects—first, to ignore altogether the Republican majority in the Convention; and, second, to involve the Minnesota case in irregularity, so as to furnish an excuse to hold it back until its admission can be made the price of the admission of Kansas."

One thousand applications have been already filed for commissions in the new regiment raised of Congress.

Southerners insist that the double-headed Convention of Minnesota was as irregular as that of Kansas.

The Senate Territorial Committee, on the question of admitting Minnesota, stand probably three for and three against it. Mr. Jones is doubtful. Many Republicans are incensed that only the Constitution signed by Democrats was sent in, contrary to the agreement at the conference.

[From special Correspondent of the Boston Times.]

The Chinese.

THE MYSTERY OF SMALL FEET EXPLAINED.—"Through the aid of the Missionaries I was afforded an opportunity of examining the feet of several female children who were undergoing the process of having their feet deformed in the approved Chinese method. The first was a child of two years old. Her penance had just commenced. When the bandage of the cotton was taken off I found that the great toe had been untouched, but the other four had been forced down under the ball of the foot, and closely bound in that position.—The child, therefore, walked on the knuckle joints of her four toes, the toes were red and inflamed, and the ligature caused evident pain. In the next three children (all of ages advancing at a small interval) the preparation was only to the same extent; it was confined to the four toes; gradually, however, these four toes, owing to the continual pressure, lost their articulations and their identity as limbs, and became amalgamated with the sole of the foot. In the eldest of the four the redness and inflammation had entirely subsided, and looked as though the four toes had been cut off with a knife.

In the fifth girl I saw the commencement of the second operation—a torture under which sickly children frequently die. The sole of the foot was now curved into the shape of a bow; the great toe and heel being brought as nearly together as possible. This is done very gradually. The bandage is never slackened.—At last the ball of the natural foot fits into the hollow of the sole, the root of the great toe is brought into contact with the heel. The instep is where the ankle was, and all that is left to go into the slipper and to tread the ground is the ball of the great toe and heel. Two of the girls were yet suffering great pain, but in the eldest the operation was complete. She had attained to the position of the small footed woman. One of the mammas, influenced perhaps by a little liberality in the article of rice money, intrusted me with a Chinese mystere de toilette. Sometimes, it seems, when women are expected to have to do hard work, her toes and heel are not drawn so tightly together as to produce the true "small foot." To disguise this imperfection upon her marriage day she has recourse to art. A piece of cork, shaped like an inverted sugar loaf, is strapped on to her foot, and the small part goes into the slipper, and passes for foot.

FLOUR,
Wheat Meal & Shorts.
The subscriber has commenced manufacturing FLOUR in one of the best Wheat growing sections of the West. His purchases of wheat are made by agents going among the farmers and selecting the choicest parcels of White Winter Wheat, for which an extra price is paid, rejecting all other kinds and all ordinary qualities. Attached to his Mill are all the latest improvements. The Wheat is thoroughly cleansed before grinding, and the Flour is double cooled before packing. The whole contents of the Wheat are transported to Bangor by Railroad, in Flour of four different qualities, in unbolted wheat meal, and in shorts. A car load, 100 bbls, will arrive weekly, so that customers can be supplied at all times with Flour and Meal, fresh ground within ten days. The meal is in bags, consequently not injured by packing 196 lbs. in a barrel as is the usual practice. This Flour and Meal will be found to have the fresh flavor of pure new Wheat, not having been heated in large piles or in vessels; as is the case with nearly all the wheat manufactured in the large establishments for the large markets.
Dealers can be accommodated with a weekly supply on favorable terms, upon application to the subscriber, Office No. 27 West Market Place.

BOSTON,

AFTER an extensive practice of upwards of twenty years continues to secure Patents in the United States also in Great Britain France and other foreign countries Caveats, Specifications Assignments and all Papers for Petitions for Patents executed on liberal terms and with despatch Research made into American or Foreign works to determine the validity or utility of Patents or Inventions—and legal or other advice rendered in all matters touching the same Copies of the claims of any Patent furnished by remitting One Dollar Assignments recorded at Washington

This Agency is not only the largest in New England, but through it inventors have advantages for securing Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions unsurpassed by if not immeasurably superior to any which can be offered elsewhere The testimonials below given prove that no agent MORE SUCCESSFUL AT THE PATENT OFFICE than the subscriber and as SUCCESS IS THE BEST PROOF OF ADVANTAGES AND ABILITY he would add that he has abundant reason to believe and can prove that at no other office of the kind are the charges for professional services as moderate The immense practice of the subscriber, during twenty years past has enabled him to accumulate a vast collection of specifications and official decisions relative to patents These besides his extensive library of legal and mechanical works, and full accounts of patents granted in the United States and Europe render him able beyond question, to offer superior facilities for obtaining patents

All necessity of a journey to Washington, to procure a patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors

TESTIMONIALS

During the time I occupied the office of Commissioner of Patents R H Eddy, Esq of Boston, did business at the Patent Office and for procuring patents. There were few if any persons acting in that capacity who had so much business before the Patent office, and there were none who conducted it with more skill diligence and success I regard Mr Eddy as one of the best informed and most skillful solicitors in the United States and have full confidence in advising inventors that they cannot employ a person more competent and trustworthy, and one capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent office or Liver Remedy.

THIS IS ONE OF THE GREATEST SCIENTIFIC Medical discoveries ever made and is fast working its way into universal favor. It cures almost incredible cases of Liver Complaint, from the mild form of a torpid Liver, or simple headache, to the most aggravated cases of Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint. The Liver is one of the most important organs of the human body and when it becomes deranged the powers of the system are more or less impaired. The stomach is almost entirely dependent on the Liver for the proper performance of its functions. When this organ becomes torpid the bowels are inactive and constipation follows, the whole system suffers in consequence. Headache, pain in the side, loss of appetite, costiveness, are some of the symptoms of a deranged Liver. For one of the most popular remedies for these complaints which have been introduced to the notice of the public, the proprietor hopes to receive a liberal share of patronage. It is a vegetable preparation, and has been in use for several years, during which time it has gained a reputation for curing the most obstinate cases of Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Jaundice, Loss of Appetite, Headache, Dizziness, Sick Stomach, Nausea, Pain in the Bowels, Flatulency, Colic, Dysentery, Diarrhœa, Cholera Morbus, Cholera Infantum, Fever and Ague, Fever, Intermittent Fever, Bilious Fever, Inflammation of the Liver, Jaundice, Dropsy, Piles, Costiveness
